

Making learning meaningful, memorable and fun

Roger Stent, M.Sc., B.Sc., Dip Mgt, F Inst LM, FCMI, M. Inst. D, MAC, is an executive coach, mentor and management trainer with over twenty years' experience in operations and business-to-business contract services, many at director and senior manager level for large PLCs within the private and regulated sectors. He established ST*R Learning in 2003 and together with his partners has built up an impressive portfolio of gilt-edged clients and services. He specialises in designing and delivering development solutions unique to each client. He regularly coaches and mentors all levels of staff from Chief Executives downwards, and has a highly interactive and searching training style that encourages discussion and application.

This experience has provided him with the skills, knowledge and understanding to help clients and coachees get the best from their organisation, themselves and from their people. Roger specialises in the impact of organisational change, leadership and people development. His extensive experience has helped Roger to coach many clients over the past three years, including senior managers within the NHS, the Houses of Parliament, a Local Authority, and major commercial organisations. He has also supported less senior staff in developing their confidence and interpersonal skills, and in career development and outplacement counselling.

Selecting the right trainer, coach and mentor is critical, and Roger welcomes the opportunity to talk informally with potential clients on a no-commitment basis to help them make the right choice.

Roger's open and supportive approach to business and management enables him to bring a practical, enthusiastic and personal style to his coaching, training and consultancy. He holds a Postgraduate Diploma in Executive Coaching and Leadership Mentoring through OPM (the Office of Public Management) and a Certificate in Life Coaching, and is a Member of the Association of Coaching. He is a TAP qualified trainer, a registered practitioner of the British Psychological Society, and an Investors in People Practitioner.
